*The portfolio performance is based on a composite of all individual portfolios under the same mandate type and does not represent any specific portfolio. Returns are calculated using a composite Time-Weighted Rate of Return (TWRR), with individual portfolio returns weighted by their beginning-of-period asset values to account for varying portfolio sizes and cash flows. For more details on how the composite return is derived, please refer to the article titled "Understanding Private Mandate" on www.phillipinvest.com.my.

FUND MANAGER'S COMMENT

The MSCI Asia Pacific Ex-Japan Index (+2.7%) dashed past the MSCI World Index (+0.7%) for a decisive lead to close off 2025, as the Asia Pacific markets gained an impressive 26.8% for the year, outperforming the global index by 7.3%. South Korea (+7.3%) was the runaway star for the month and year (+75.6%) as the AI theme boosted DRAM names due to a supply squeeze. Taiwan (+4.8%) followed suit, as demand for advanced packaging also surged in tandem with HBM/DRAM demand. Malaysia (+4.7%) trailed closely behind, as year-end window dressing helped lift big cap names. Fortunately, even the worst performer in December closed somewhat flattish, with Hong Kong dropping only 0.9% mom as investors flocked towards crowded AI stocks.

As we move through 2026, global equities are expected to post moderate gains, supported by solid earnings growth, though valuation concerns persist. For investors, geopolitical developments, AI-related capital expenditure monetization, and concentration risks are key factors. The current Fed rate-cut cycle should support equities, with Asian markets potentially able to ease further given elevated real rates. In this environment, we recommend a barbell strategy focused on quality growth and income to navigate potential volatility.
