MANAGER'S COMMENTS

The MSCI Asia Pacific Ex-Japan Index (+6.0%) continued to trump the MSCI World Index (+0.6%) as chipmakers thrive while big tech takes a dive. South Korea (+19.5%) maintained its top performer streak for 3 months in-a-row as the large cap memory plays continue to be the center of investors' attention. Thailand (+15.3%) was a surprise winner for the month as the Bhumjaithai party's victory in the recent general elections restored faith to the equity markets. Taiwan (+10.5%) continues to trail South Korea as a prominent foundry in the ongoing booming memory supply chain. Meanwhile, Hong Kong (-2.8%) pulled back some of January's gains, facing its biggest drop since October last year. Malaysia (-1.4%) endured a slight decline on profit-taking activities after President Trump renewed tariff concerns amidst a jittery global backdrop. Indonesia (-1.1%) remains troubled with a looming MSCI downgrade despite reporting its fastest GDP growth rate in 3 years.

Tensions between the United States, Israel and Iran have escalated significantly during Donald Trump's second presidency. The first major escalation happened in June 2025, when Israel launched large-scale strikes on Iran's nuclear and military facilities. Iran responded with waves of missiles and drones targeting Israel, leading to a brief 12-day conflict. The US later joined with strikes on Iranian nuclear sites, showing its willingness to directly intervene to curb Iran's nuclear ambitions. The confrontation flared up again in February 2026, when the US and Israel carried out another coordinated round of strikes on Iranian military and leadership targets. While markets usually react with short-term fear, we believe the most likely outcome is a prolonged period of ongoing conflict rather than a full-scale war. In this environment, a barbell strategy balancing high-quality growth exposures with income-oriented assets remains well suited to navigating bouts of volatility.
